Location
Deputy Sheriff, Fall River County, Hot Springs, South Dakota, was on duty at Pine Ridge, South Dakota, and had occasion to go to Wounded Knee Trading Post on March 9, 1972. [Redacted] recalls there were many cars in the vicinity of the trading post and he also saw a school bus which he believes was from Pine Ridge, South Dakota. The group, he judged, was composed mostly of young Indian people and quite a few grammar school and high school students. From observation he judged DAVE LONG, vice-president of the Indian Tribal Council, and OSCAR HOLLOW HORN were two leaders in charge of the demonstration.

He later learned that RUSSELL MEANS, a leader of the American Indian Movement (AIM), was also present at the demonstration; however, he, [Redacted], did not believe MEANS was as active as the two tribal leaders. [Redacted] stated he made no arrests during the course of this demonstration and is unable to furnish the identity of any individuals who looted the trading post store or were involved in the burglary of the Memorial Museum.
Officer ___________ Pine Ridge Police Department, was interviewed at Pine Ridge, South Dakota, and he advised as follows:

Sometime between 2:00 p.m. and 3:00 p.m. on Thursday, March 9, 1972, he was dispatched to the trading post at Wounded Knee, South Dakota, as there had been some rumors to the effect that the American Indian Movement (AIM) was going to try to take over the trading post at Wounded Knee, South Dakota. ___________ stated when he arrived at the scene it appeared DAVE LONG, who is vice-president of the Sioux Indian Tribal Council in Pine Ridge was the leader of the group which consisted of approximately 200 people who had evidently traveled to Wounded Knee in personally owned cars and a bus. ___________ stated he only had instructions to keep the peace and he had no instructions to attempt to arrest any members of the Tribal Council who were apparently in charge of the group at the trading post.

He recognized RUSSELL MEANS, a leader of AIM, and OSCAR HOLLOW HORN as other leaders besides LONG who were apparently in charge of the group. ___________ stated he made no attempt to arrest any individuals in view of the leadership in connection with the demonstration.

Concerning the break-in of the museum, ___________ stated he was not aware of the burglary at the museum and can furnish no information concerning the break-in. He stated during the demonstration he was in front of the trading post and as such could not observe the Memorial Museum.
Captain FRED TWO BULL was interviewed and advised he is Chief of the Pine Ridge, South Dakota, Police Department, which is controlled by the Oglala Sioux Indian Tribe. He indicated the Department is paid by tribal funds. TWO BULL indicated he received a telephone call from _______ on the afternoon of March 9, 1972, concerning a possible demonstration at Wounded Knee, South Dakota, by the Indians who were going to the funeral of RAYMOND YELLOW THUNDER which was being held at Porcupine, South Dakota, late in the afternoon of March 9, 1972.

TWO BULL indicated he dispatched _______ Pine Ridge Police Department, and he believed _______ arrived in Wounded Knee sometime around 3:00 on March 9, 1972. He, TWO BULL, went to the Wounded Knee Trading Post on the afternoon of March 9, 1972. He stated he did not observe any looting; at the time he was there; however, he is aware it did occur.

He stated he was in a difficult position in view of the fact that DAVE LONG and OSCAR HOLLOW HORN are both members of the Indian Tribal Council and are members of the Police Commission of the Tribe, so he did not feel he could have his men arrest members of the Tribal Council without jeopardizing his position as Chief of Police. TWO BULL stated when he directed Officer _______ to go to the Wounded Knee Trading Post he did not give him any specific instructions other than the to keep peace and try to prevent anyone from getting injured.

TWO BULL further stated he did not know that the group had intended to go to the Wounded Knee Trading Post during the course of the funeral procession from Pine Ridge to Porcupine, South Dakota. From information available to his department, TWO BULL stated he is unable to furnish any information concerning the identity of individuals who burglarized the museum and looted the trading post store.
Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA), was interviewed concerning any information he may have received concerning the break-in at the museum in Wounded Knee, South Dakota, on March 9, 1972.

He advised he is a Sioux Indian and has resided on the Oglala Sioux Indian Reservation for many years and has been an investigator for the BIA for 20 years. He stated he is well acquainted with the museum at Wounded Knee, South Dakota, and was aware of the fact that museum had been broken into and looted on March 9, 1972. He stated he had not personally inspected the museum following the break-in. However, he is well acquainted with the type of artifacts and merchandise on display in the museum. From information coming to him it appears the items stolen from the museum included beaded vests, ceremonial Indian saddles, beaded shields, and beaded horse blankets.

He stated he could not understand how the owners of the trading post could place a value of $50,000 on the articles stolen from the museum. He stated from his knowledge of the material on display in the museum $5,000 would be a high price for the above-described items. He further stated he has heard no information as to the identity of the individuals who broke into the museum. He indicated on the day of the break-in there were many Indians outside of the Pine Ridge Reservation in Wounded Knee in view of the fact they were en route from Pine Ridge, South Dakota, to Porcupine, South Dakota, for the reburial of RAYMOND YELLOW THUNDER, who was being buried some ten miles from Wounded Knee, South Dakota, and this group had apparently stopped at Wounded Knee on the day in question.

Original 70-6832-Sue 85
an employee of the Wounded Knee Trading Post, was interviewed concerning the demonstration which occurred at the trading post on March 9, 1972.

He indicated on the afternoon of March 9, 1972, he was working in the trading post store and there were quite a number of customers in the store. All of a sudden a large group of cars appeared in front of the store and a man he knew as DAVID LONG, vice-president of the Sioux Indian Tribal Council in Pine Ridge, South Dakota, appeared at the entrance to the store and demanded to see ______. He recalls left the store and went out with LONG and he apparently disappeared into the crowd.

Concerning the activity in the store stated when LONG entered he was shouting reprisals against and he was telling the Indians who accompanied them to take whatever they wanted as it belonged to the Indians of the Indian Agency and not to the trading post.

Further recalls OSCAR HOLLOW HORN was shouting directions to the group, urging and telling them to go into the store and take whatever they wanted as it belonged to them. Stated he judged there were approximately 100-200 people in front of the store and in the store at various times. Other than the leaders he did not recognize any of the Indians as being from Wounded Knee and, therefore, he believed they were from the town of Pine Ridge. He recalls seeing a school bus which he believes was from the school located at Pine Ridge, South Dakota.
a Chippewa Indian residing at Wounded Knee, South Dakota, was interviewed in an effort to determine the identity of individuals who burglarized the Memorial Museum on March 9, 1972.

Mrs. indicated she was standing in her home which is located almost across the street from the museum on the main street in Wounded Knee, South Dakota. At approximately 3:00 p.m. she was looking out at the large group of people congregated in front of the trading post when she noticed four tall boys, she would guess they were of high school age, went to the door of the museum and pulled down the door. It appeared from her vantage point that these boys tore the left side of the door sash off which allowed them entrance into the building.

She indicated a large group of smaller children, she would judge grammar school age, followed the older boys into the museum and a few minutes later she saw them carrying beaded goods, including moccasins and blankets, from the museum and placing them in the various automobiles which were parked on the street. She recalls many of the young people took some of the stolen items to the bus as it appeared the younger children did arrive in Wounded Knee by bus. Mrs. stated she did not recognize any of the individuals as residents of Wounded Knee, and it was her guess that they probably were from the Pine Ridge, South Dakota area.

Mrs. indicated the time involved in the break-in and when the children departed the museum was extremely short. She indicated it was not over ten minutes and all of the children entered and left the museum. Mrs. indicated she did not see any police officers in the area immediately adjacent to the museum.
Wounded Knee Trading Post and Memorial Museum at Wounded Knee, South Dakota, on the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation was interviewed concerning the events which occurred at the trading post on the afternoon of March 9, 1972. He advised he was confronted with a large group of Sioux Indians, most of whom were from the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation at Pine Ridge, South Dakota. The leader of the group appeared to be DAVE LONG, vice-president of the Oglala Sioux Indian Tribal Council, who came into the store in the trading post and asked him to step outside.

He stated LONG was very abusive to him and made remarks to the effect that he had assaulted the boy on the previous Wednesday and had tried to choke him. LONG further stated he had exploited the Indians, and he indicated this confrontation was a reprisal for his attack on the Indian boy. LONG, in a loud voice, urged all the young Indian children to enter the store and take anything they wanted as anything in the trading post belonged to the Indian Agency and could be taken by anyone.

Further advised OSCAR HOLLOW HORN, a member of the Oglala Sioux Tribal Council, was also present during this gathering and he, in a very loud voice, accused of exploiting the Indian and treating them unfairly, and HOLLOW HORN urged the Indians in the group to enter the store and take any merchandise as it belonged to them and not to the white man.

Further stated RUSSELL MEANS was present. He was not aware at the time who RUSSELL MEANS was, but later was told MEANS was a leader in the American Indian Movement (AIM). MEANS stated MEANS was not as loud and as abusive as LONG and HOLLOW HORN; however, he left no doubt in his mind that MEANS was supporting the fact that the Indians had a right to anything in the trading post, and he did not do anything them.
stated the value was approximately $2,500 in merchandise which consisted of leather and beaded goods, a large stock of beaded moccasins, leather vests and purses, pieces of Sioux pottery and numerous pieces of costume jewelry.

The testimony did indicate Captain FRED TWO BULL was present during some of this disturbance. He stated he recalls TWO BULL making some statement to the effect that he could not arrest the tribal leaders and took no action to stop the looting by the Indians, who consisted mostly of high school and grammar school children from the town of Pine Ridge.

stated he did not have personal knowledge of the forced entry into the museum operated by the trading post which was entered by unknown individuals who broke eight showcases in the building and looted the museum of numerous pieces of beaded vests, rugs, and artifacts, including bows and arrows and pictures. He placed the value of the items removed from the museum at approximately $50,000.
of the Wounded Knee Trading Post and Memorial Museum located at Wounded Knee, South Dakota, on the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation, was interviewed concerning the activities concerning the looting of the trading post store and museum.

He was advised shortly after noon on March 9, 1972, he was in the Memorial Museum showing a group of children of junior high school age around the museum and explaining some of the Indian lore on display. These Indian children made some remark to him to the effect "a large bunch from Pine Ridge will take care of you." He stated after this group of children left the museum he immediately locked the museum and returned to the trading post. He stated from the remarks made by these Indians he was of the opinion that there was a large group of people coming from Pine Ridge to Wounded Knee and it was his opinion that there might be trouble at the trading post. He told about the conversation in the museum and he suggested that should notify the Tribal Police Department in Pine Ridge, South Dakota.

Sometime between 2:30 and 3:00 p.m., remembers seeing a large group of Indians gathering outside of the trading post and many of the young people entered the trading post to look over the merchandise. He judged this group to number between 200 and 300. He judged there were approximately 50-100 vehicles plus a busload of children. He recalls distinctly DAVE LONG came into the trading post store leading the group and making abusive remarks to shouting remarks to the fact that was exploiting the Indians and the Indians were rightfully entitled to anything in the store. LONG shouted commands to the group that all of the merchandise belonged to the Indians and they should help themselves to the merchandise. LONG did ask to step outside and he wanted with them. Outside they were confronted by RUSSELL MEANS, American Indian Movement (AIM) leader, and OSCAR HOLLOW HORN, a member of the Sioux Indian Tribal Council, who challenged them to the trading post. They indicated that the Indians had the right to the trading post and they were going to take over.
OSCAR HOLLOW HORN was particularly loud and abusive and he made every effort to direct the younger people in the group to enter the store and encourage them to loot any merchandise. During the course of this confrontation, he stated he was knocked down; however, he was not injured. He stated apparently he was jumped from the side and he did not observe the individual who knocked him down.

Concerning the entrance into the Memorial Museum, indicated his attention was directed to the trading post store which was being looted and he could furnish no information as to who broke into the museum and looted the merchandise and Indian artifacts. Later upon inspection, stated the sash of the front door had been torn out and unknown individuals had broken into five glass display cases and cleaned them out of Indian artifacts and beadwork and other merchandise.
of Indian Affairs (BIA), furnished the following information concerning the confrontation which occurred at the Wounded Knee, Trading Post and Memorial Museum, Wounded Knee, South Dakota, which is located on the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation.

According to [Redacted] DAVE LONG who is vice-president of the Oglala Sioux Tribal Council; OSCAR HOLLOW HORN, member of the Oglala Sioux Tribal Council, who are both on the Tribal Police Commission; and RUSSELL MEANS, a leader of the American Indian Movement (AIM), lead a group of approximately 200 Indians from Pine Ridge, South Dakota, to Wounded Knee, South Dakota, on March 9, 1972. This group which stopped at the Wounded Knee Trading Post and Memorial Museum, were en route to Porcupine, South Dakota, for the reburial of RAYMOND YELLOW THUNDER who was allegedly a murder victim at Gordon, Nebraska on March 6, 1972.

breakdown of law enforcement on the part of the Pine Ridge Police Department which had been alerted for possible trouble at Wounded Knee, South Dakota. Captain FRED TWO BULL told him at the time of the incident he, TWO BULL, was at Wounded Knee on the afternoon of March 9, 1972, but he would not and did not make any arrests. He felt he could not make any arrests due to the fact HOLLOW HORN and LONG are members of the Tribal Council and are on the Police Commission of the Tribal Council, and it would be extremely difficult for TWO BULL to place the leaders under arrest for directing the Indians and encouraging them to loot the Wounded Knee Trading Post and Museum.
and the writers inspected the museum area. It was noted the front door to the museum had been repaired and was secured with a padlock. The museum building is a building adjacent to the trading post store, but is offset in the front from the trading post so individuals in front of the trading post door could not observe anyone breaking into the museum without going around the corner of the trading post to a place directly in front of the museum.

An inspection of the museum reflects the five showcases which were broken into were apparently smashed by some steel rods which were lying about the museum. There was considerable dust and dirt on the floor. The showcases for the most part had been cleaned out. They had been filled with Indian artifacts and beaded work as well as ceremonial saddles and blankets. Advised he did not have an inventory of the items which were missing. An inspection of the glass particles failed to reflect any latent fingerprints as there was an accumulation of dust on all of the particles on the floor which had been broken from the showcases.

Details:
Mr. [Name] furnished the following information:

On March 9, 1972, at approximately 2:30 PM, approximately 300 Indians arrived in Wounded Knee, South Dakota, by private cars and one school bus, from Pine Ridge, South Dakota. They entered the store and commenced berating and cursing him, his wife, and Mr. and Mrs. [Name]. They accused Mr. [Name] of assaulting and choking an Indian boy. He recognized a few of the Indians, but most of them were strangers. Several grabbed him and pushed him out of the door, stating they were going to do the same to him as what happened to RAYMOND YELLOW THUNDER. While he was being pushed out, he fell or tripped, and while lying on the ground, one of the leaders, name unknown, spit on him. He stated he could identify this individual.

One of the leaders appeared to be DAVE LONG, the Pine Ridge Tribal Council Vice President. He stated the individuals who were pushing him around had been drinking but were not, in his opinion, intoxicated. Several of the group stole articles such as Indian headbands, beads, and moccasins, from the display area of the store. They then proceeded to the museum, which is located immediately adjacent to the store, in a separate building.

Mr. [Name] stated he has not had the opportunity to check the damage to the museum or determine what was actually stolen. He stated he would prepare a detailed descriptive list of the stolen articles from the store and museum.

He furnished the following list of individuals who participated in the theft of articles from the store:

He also stated one of the leaders requested spray paint, which he was going to use on the signs in the area, advertising the museum and the Wounded Knee Massacre. Several of the group made the accusation that the white trader, meaning ___ was making money on the advertising and demanded all signs be removed or they would return and "burn them out."
The facts in this case were discussed with U. S. Attorney WILLIAM P. CLAYTON, Sioux Falls, South Dakota, on March 17, 1973, and he advised he would hold any prosecutive opinion in this matter in abeyance until he could evaluate all of the facts in the case with a view of perhaps presenting this matter to a Federal Grand Jury at Sioux Falls, South Dakota, at a later date.
No torture sign found in autopsy on Indian

RAPID CITY, S.D. (AP) — A second autopsy on the body of an Indian found dead in a used-car lot in Gordon, Neb., has failed to substantiate Indian accusations that he was tortured.

John Echo Hawk, an attorney for the Native American Rights Fund, said the results of the second autopsy Thursday confirmed the initial finding that death was due to a cerebral hemorrhage.

Yellow Thunder's body was found Feb. 20, seven days after he was stripped from the waist down and shoved into an American Legion hall where a dance was in progress, authorities said.

Five white persons were arrested — four men and a woman. Three were charged with manslaughter and two with false imprisonment. A preliminary hearing is scheduled for Tuesday in Gordon, a community of 2,100 which includes about 200 Indians.

Yesterday's autopsy was performed at the request of relatives and the American Indian Movement (AIM) after charges were made that Yellow Thunder had been castrated and burned with cigarettes prior to his death.

"There were no cigarette burns, no crushed hands and no evidence of any other mutilation," said Echo Hawk, one of seven persons chosen by the family to witness the autopsy.

The death of Yellow Thunder, a 51-year-old South Dakota Sioux, became a rallying point for Indians in this area.

Tuesday, about 1,000 Indians led by AIM officials gathered in Gordon to protest the death and demand further investigation.

Sheridan County Atty. Michael Smith said he didn't know why the Indians had demanded the second autopsy, since he already had brought charges in the death.

They were further advised of the nature of the interview, of the identity of the interviewing agent, and of the fact that was not at that time under arrest in connection with this offense. Each stated they understood her rights, and then executed a Waiver of Rights. She then furnished the following information:

On March 9, 1972, she went to Wounded Knee, South Dakota together with a ________ who is currently attending the University of South Dakota at Vermillion, ________ who is also attending the same University, ________ and ________ who live in Sioux City, Iowa, and who may be contacted by the Indian Social Center in that town. Also present was ________ of Mayetta, Kansas. The group drove to Wounded Knee in ________ car.

Upon arriving at Wounded Knee, they went first to the grave site of the Wounded Knee massacre, and then on to the Wounded Knee Store. She noted that prior to going to Wounded Knee, there had been a large gathering of people at the Billy Mills Hall in Pine Ridge, South Dakota that were planning to go to the cemetery. The group then was talking of going to talk to ________ the store. She said she cannot recall who suggested talking to and there were no plans to damage anything or take anything from the store.

The group with her arrived at the store first. The men asked ________ why he did that to that boy. She said that ________ denied it. She said that she herself said nothing to anyone.

Her group left the store then saw a large group of people arriving at the store, so her group turned around and went back to the cemetery and then followed the large group to the store. She saw RUSSELL MEANS and ________ talking to ________ regarding his allegedly having assaulted the ________ She then left the store area.
and went to a large sign by the cemetery. She said she did not see who painted this sign. She then returned to the store and saw moccasins being thrown out of the store. She said there were a lot of young kids at the scene, but she has no idea as to what person might have been throwing anything out of the store.

About that time some other young children ran by and said that the museum being torn apart. She claimed that she saw no older people in the museum "just a lot of young kids." She said she did not know the identity of any of these persons. Miss [redacted] advised that she herself did not go in the museum during the trouble, and took nothing from the museum. She claimed to have no idea where the stolen property is at the present time. She stated she heard no one urging anyone else to commit any crimes. She does recall seeing DAVE LONG at Wounded Knee, but just saw him walk past her once, and did not hear him say anything. She did not see OSCAR HOLLOW HORN at Wounded Knee.

Miss [redacted] said she is certain the people that took things at Wounded Knee felt that they were only counting coup against the whiteman as "after all, the stuff in the museum belongs to the Indian people."

Synopsis: Part of stolen property sold by Facts of case presented to Federal Grand Jury. Advised she heard MEANS state he was ashamed because of the thefts from the Wounded Knee Museum.

DETAILS
On facts concerning this case were presented to a Federal Grand Jury. The case was left open with the Grand Jury for presentation at a later date of any facts that might become available in the future.

Attempts to locate at Batesland, South Dakota on July 18, 26, 1972 were negative.

On July 26, 1972 Wounded Knee Trading Post advised a told her husband that she and were in the museum when it was broken into. She also claimed told her husband that the one hundred year old bow and arrow that were stolen were subsequently sold by some unknown boy to at Scenic, South Dakota.
Wounded Knee Trading Post, advised that four or five days ago a [redacted] who is a [redacted] at Pine Ridge, South Dakota, brought in a set of beaded curls and a rattle, which Mr. [redacted] recognized as having been stolen from his museum. He stated that Mr. [redacted] told him that he had purchased the items from a [redacted] the Sioux Nation Store in Pine Ridge, South Dakota. Mr. [redacted] told him that upon wearing the items, he had been told by local people that they appeared to be the ones stolen from the Wounded Knee Museum, which is the reason that he turned them over to Mr. [redacted].
Criminal Investigator ______ Judicial Prevention and Enforcement Service, advised that he had determined that ______ of Batesland, South Dakota, sold the beaded Indian cuffs to Mrs. ______ for either $20 or $25. Mrs. ______ told him she gave ______ a check for this amount and would attempt to locate the check. He said he later determined that ______ had claimed that his had made the cuffs and gave them to him. ______ said the cuffs were the only items that ______ sold to Mrs. ______

He advised he subsequently interviewed ______ showed her the cuffs, and she stated that she definitely had not made them. He also said that he acquired the cuffs from ______ and has custody of them.

______ said that an ______ told him that a young boy gave her a peyote staff right after the incident at Wounded Knee, South Dakota. She also told him that she was present during the incident at Wounded Knee but said that there was just a mob and that a whole bunch of people broke into the museum. She said they were "just a mob of kids" and advised she did not recognize anyone who entered the museum. She also told him that she later sold the staff back to ______ for $10 and ______ now has the staff.

advised that she and ______ were at the incident at the Wounded Knee Store and Museum just as spectators. She said that she was not accompanied by ______ and did not see ______ at the scene. She advised she had been in Pine Ridge, South Dakota and overheard some people say that they were going out to inspect the graves at Wounded Knee so she and ______ went along to see what might happen.

When she arrived and was standing outside the store, she saw some other people outside the store whom she did not know accusing ______ of having choked some kid. ______ was denying this allegation. She said that she and ______ then turned and were going to go in the store and about that time she heard some woman say "they're stealing". She then saw a lot of moccasins come flying out the door of the store.

She advised there were so many people around they were stepping and pushing on each other and she could not see much of what else was going on. She knows nothing regarding the incident at the Wounded Knee Museum except that a little later she saw a person whom she believes was RUSSELL MEANS closing up the Museum by putting a board over the door. She did not know until then that it had even been broken into. Everyone then left and went to the Burial of Yellow Thunder.

At the Burial RUSSELL MEANS got up and told the crowd that he was ashamed because some teenagers had gone into the Museum. He said he had not heard of it until it had happened and the only way the Indians could live it down would be if those kids that took the stuff would bury it. She said she herself has no idea as to what happened to the items taken from the Museum and she never saw any of these items. She also said that she did see ______ on the ground but has no idea as to how he got there. She also said she has never told Enclosed for the Bureau are five (5) photographs.

In March, 1972, a large group of unknown Indians broke into the Wounded Knee Store and Museum at Wounded Knee, South Dakota, within the confines of the Pine Ridge, South Dakota Indian Reservation, and took approximately $50,000 worth of items from the buildings.

On September 6, 1972, Criminal Investigator [blank] Police Department, Pine Ridge, South Dakota, made available the enclosed photographs, which from the writing on the back of them and from the scenes depicted, were apparently taken at the time of the incident. These photographs were found in a billfold which had apparently been lost.

The Laboratory is requested to enlarge the photographs so that an effort may be made to identify some or all of the persons in them, so they may be interviewed.
Longhorn Bar, advised that he has only two bows and arrows in the bar and has had both of them for a year or more. Neither one are real old ones. He stated that he has neither bought nor took in anything from the Wounded Knee Museum since the incident at that place.
Criminal Investigator [redacted] advised that an informant found and gave to him a billfold containing a lot of pictures of the American Indian Movement incident. These pictures were taken at Gordon, Nebraska, the Billy Mills Hall, and Wounded Knee, South Dakota. There is writing on the back of each picture describing what was taking place at the time the pictures were taken. He further advised there were two pictures of a girl found in the billfold apparently addressed to [redacted] from [redacted]. He said he has determined that the [redacted] in the photograph is [redacted].

Mr. [redacted] made available the photographs taken at Wounded Knee, South Dakota.

Mrs. [Redacted] mother of [Redacted] advised that RICHARD YELLO/ THUNDER was [Redacted] and that someone, she does not know who, gave her family the photographs which were recovered by Criminal Investigator [Redacted] as a momento of YELLO/ THUNDER's second burial. She examined the photographs and said that she knows nothing regarding the incident at Wounded Knee, South Dakota, and claims she cannot identify anyone in the photographs.
advised she was in the store at Wounded Knee, South Dakota, at the time that the museum at Wounded Knee was broken into. She said she herself did not go into the museum at all. She also denied any knowledge as to who did go into the museum or as to what happened to the items taken from the museum.

The photos recovered by Criminal Investigator were exhibited to Miss. She identified them as photos which had been given to her family. She said she did not take the photos and did not know who did take them. She also said she could not identify anyone in the photographs except for RUSSELL MEANS. She again said she stayed in the store during the time the museum was being broken into and said she knows nothing about what went on other than that at Wounded Knee, South Dakota.

Mrs. [Blank], wife of [Blank], Wesleyan Lakota Mission, Pine Ridge, South Dakota, furnished the following information:

In March, 1972 (she does not remember the exact day, but she does remember that it was the night of the day that the Wounded Knee Trading Post was burglarized), she was visiting [Blank] trailer home in Pine Ridge. At about midnight, [Blank] and another Indian male had come in with a big stuffed bird and a peace pipe which they said was from the Wounded Knee Trading Post. [Blank] have since moved to the Sioux Addition Housing in Rapid City. At the time of the burglary, there were an Indian male and female, names unknown, staying with the [Blank]. She feels that these people are actively involved in AIM and possibly in the burglary of the Trading Post. They were both in their early twenties and were not Sioux Indians. She believes that they were from out of state. She stated that she told her husband about this incident and he relayed the information onto [Blank] Wounded Knee Trading Post.

Mrs. _____ of the Sioux Indian Museum, Rapid City, South Dakota, furnished the following information:

On January 16, 1973, an Indian female who identified herself as _____ brought a pair of red and white beaded moccasins into the museum and offered to sell them. She asked who made them and said that her aunt made them for her. She asked why she did not want to keep them and she answered that she needed money too bad. Mrs. _____ bought the moccasins and paid by check (#7171 drawn on the National Bank of South Dakota, Rapid City, South Dakota).

A couple weeks later, Mrs. _____ came into the museum and bought the moccasins for $75. Mrs. _____ described as an Indian female in her early thirties. She does not believe that she would recognize her if she saw her again. The following descriptive data regarding Mrs. _____ was obtained from observation.
